WITH TWITTER BLUE TICK GONE. SHARK TANK JUDGE ANUPAM MITTAL CANCELS PLAN TO BUY TESLA E

Under the original blue-check system, Twitter had roughly 400,000 verified users, including actors and athletes as well as journalists, human rights activists and public agencies, reported AP.

Celebrities, professional athletes and other high-profile Twitter users are reacting on Twitter as Elon Musk removes legacy Blue Ticks of all users, barring those who have more than 1 million followers. Shark Tank Judge and CEO of Shaadi.com Anupam Mittal also reacted on Twitter, with his Blue Tick gone. Taking on to Twitter, Anupam Mittal said he is cancelling his plans for buying a Tesla electric vehicle. Both Twitter and Tesla are owned by Billionaire Elon Musk. "Am cancelling my planned purchase of a Tesla ... ticked off," tweeted

Several Twitter users asked Anupam Mittal to pay for his verification badge, while others supported his Tweet. One user wrote, "Isn't it hypocrisy? One who charges premium on@ShaadiDotCom for the same concept but throws tantrum for $8 per month while being a consumer of other platforms."
